

I strongly oppose the efforts of the Consumer Bankers Association to weaken the State of Indiana's law regarding telephone privacy. The unsolicited use of a telephone is an extraordinary waste of resources resulting in insignificant benefit to citizens. Those interested in receiving solicitations can allow access. This also improves the business productivity by not wasting time calling those who declare they are not interested. My message is very simple to this proposal, as my message was when I had to deal with these calls before the law. No. To have to repeat it over and over again is unpleasant and ridiculous. I believe the message from the people is very clear. Please represent our interests as we have appointed you on our behalf.
